"I'm just trying to make a difference in the community," Hall said. "I'm not promising anything, but I work for the people. When the people have concerns, they should be able to call the Aldermen about their concerns."

Hall feels that his responsibility is, above all, to the people who elected him.

Coast Guard seizes 10,000 pounds of illegal shrimp

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Coast Guard terminated the voyage of a commercial fishing vessel Friday morning approximately five miles east of Chandelier Island, after it was discovered that it had several safety violations, and seized its catch of 10,000 pounds of shrimp due to a lack of federally at approximately 1 p.m.

tion measures. The Coast Guard was notified by the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources (DMS) that the crew of the 79-foot shrimping vessel Mariachi, homeported in Brownsville, Texas, was being uncooperative in providing commercial fishing documentation during their boarding Thursday. A boarding team from Coast Guard Station Pascagoula was dispatched to assist the DMS and boarded the boat Thursday

After several unsuccessful attempts to retrieve the boat's fishing nets, the crew of Coast Guard Cutter Seahawk, homeported in Carrabelle, Fla., was also sent to assist with the boarding and relieve the Station Pascagoula boarding team.

The Seahawk's boarding team observed several safety violations including: more than 200 gallons of oil in the bilge; expired flares; unusable life jackets; and an improperly installed emergency position indicating radion beacon (EPIRB).

The Mariachi's voyage violations and safety arrived under Coast Guard escort at Station Pascagoula today at approximately 7:30 The Mariachi's 10,000 pounds of shrimp were sold at a local fish house and the money turned over to the National Marine Fisheries Service because the nets used to catch the shrimp lacked federally-required marine conservation equipment such as Turtle Excluder Devices (TEDs) and Bycatch Reduction Devices (BRDs).

Emergency workers save two from drowning at pier

BY MIKE CUEVAS There are special days

when everything you work for, everything you train for is called upon to avert a tragedy.

That was the case for members of the Bay Saint Louis Police and Fire Departments on a recent Saturday in the early evening hours at the Jimmy Rutherford Pier.

NO SWIMMING - NO DIVING FROM PIER signs are posted everywhere, even ourned into the pier planks. You can read the warnings as you walk to the end of the pier to fish or just sit and watch the water.

The signs are there for a reason - the water can be too shallow to be safe or too deep for non-swimmers. They are there to keep pier. users safe.

particular On this Saturday when something important to a pier user fell overboard the person decided to go after it. She found water too deep for a nonswimmer and panic set in. Her companion went in the water to save his panicky friend, even though he couldn't swim. Now there are two people in crisis. Other pier users were not successful in helping and

"Sgt. "He did a great job and deserves the credit for minimizing the damage of what could have been a double tragedy for this community."

The Fire Department just received its three water safety kits which include the personal flotation device and safety line used in this type of situation. "This was money well spent to have our emergency vehicles equipped to handle most situations. We live in a waterfront community where we encourage waterfront activities. We have to be prepared to quickly and professionally handle a crisis of this type," said Fire Chief Robert Gavagnie.

"This type of teamwork between our departments is what we work towards to give the best in public safety to Bay Saint Louis," said Police Chief Frank McNeil, "I'm proud of everyone."

This week's meeting of The Hancock County Board of Supervisors saw the resolution of a zoning issue which had long plagued Bayside Park Subdivision residents Frederick and Dorothy Rothwell when the board voted unanimously to allow the Rothwells to replace their dilapidated mobile home with an up-todate model.

While a zoning ordinance prohibits the replacement of trailers in Bayside Park, a ruling from the Board of Supervisors in April 2003 said that any mobile home that had been in Bayside Park since before 1997 could be replaced with a new

"Our new home far exceeds the standards set by the zoning board," Rothwell said.

While the Rothwells did not know exactly how long their home had been there, aerial photographs confirmed the trailer had been on the lot since before 1994. Candee Breaux, an acting supervisor at the time, said everything was in order for the Rothwells. However,

Frederick Rothwell became very ill with bronchitis in April 2003. Rothwell spent several months recuperating, and by the time he was well and ready to move, a new building official determined that the board's ruling violated the zoning ordinance. A planning commission meeting on April 15 decided against the Rothwells, who successfully appealed the decision this Rothwell said that many other residents felt they were in the same position he was. He stressed that this was not the case.

"We were pre-approved before we did anything. It's different from buying a mobile home and waiting to move in."

The Board of Supervisors ruled that while the actions of the planning and zoning commission followed the letter of the existing ordinance, the Rothwells should be allowed to replace their old mobile home with a new model in this instance, and this instance only, as they relied on the good faith of Hancock County city officials who believed the were Building Official Mickey Lagasse said he felt the board's decision was fair.

"I personally feel that the planning commission was right in denying it, but the great thing about this is that people are allowed to appeal. Each case has to be looked out on an individual basis. In this case, the board was justified in overturning (the planning commission's decision)."

In other business, Larry Carter, a citizen of White Cypress Lakes subdivision asked the board to split the land into 11 lots instead of three in order to discourage developers from using the land for commercial purposes.The board ruled against this measure, as White Cypress Lakes is already protected by covenants which prohibit landowners from using their property commercially.

"With all due respect, it's a case of much ado about acting in accordance with nothing."

House urges Barbour to extend special session

Resolution to protect about 5,000 Medicaid recipients

Representatives voted unanimously Tuesday, May 25, to pass a resolution that urges Gov. Haley Barbour to expand the current special legislative session to reinstate persons who would be removed from the Medicaid rolls July 1 when fiscal year 2005 begins.

The fall Legislature acted on Barbour's request during the regular 2004 session that ended May 9 to remove about 65,000 Medicaid recipients who fit in the Poverty Level Aged and Disabled (PLAD) category, in an effort to save money.

Members of the House of Representatives voted reluctantly then to go along with Gov. Barbour's plan, uncertainty

The Mississippi House of whether Mississippi would receive a waiver to protect about 5,000 of the most vulnerable PLAD recipients led to Tuesday's resolution.

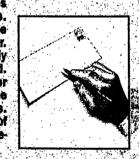

· House Resolution 10 says, "We believe that this group of low income and elderly and disabled individuals should be kept on the Medicaid rolls at the present time because of the great hardships that will be imposed on them by the transition to Medicare."

Under the plan approved diving regular session, most of the 65,000 recipients would be switched immediately to the federal program. Medicare However, the 5,000 persons not yet eligible for Medicare could be left without vital health-care services, includ-

Gov. Barbour has asked federal officials for a waiver to continue providing coverage for the 5,000 persons. He told a meeting of House health-care leaders last week that it could be July 1 before it is known if the waiver will be approved.

"There will be major costs to the health care system in Mississippi after the PLADs are no longer on Medicaid, because many hospitals and other providers will be forced to bear the health care costs not covered by Medicare for a large number of these individuals," the House resolution reads. Medicaid is seen by many rural health-care providers and facilities as a major source of revenue.

State Medicaid Director Dr. Warren Jones told last week's meeting that his staff will be working overtime to ensure that recipients get the proper information about the changes that are scheduled to take place July 1 if the law passed in regular session stays in

He noted that anyone taken off Medicaid rolls has a right to appeal that decision. Also, all PLADs removed will have their cases reviewed to see if they qualify for another pro-chorus around the state Capitol has grown louder in recent years as the number of Republicans elected to the Legislature, or party switches, has grown in strength, making it more difficult to get the three any revenue bill.

However, several other states in the South that faced the same dilemma as Mississippi have bitten the bullet and raised taxes to prevent damaging cuts in education and other servic-

Virginia, the latest to raise taxes, is a spectacular case study because is has Democratic governor and a Republican majority in each branch of the General Assembly.

Virginia lawmakers had been unable for almost four months to agree on funding state budget. Democratic Gov. Mark Warner proposed $1 billion in new taxes to break the budget impasse.

Each of the two legislative branches passed tax plans larger than Warner asked for. Amazingly, two weeks ago they agreed on a $1.4 billion (yes, billion) general tax hike that included everything from cigarettes to income taxes.

Mind you, Virginia is a tobacco-growing state. It upped its tax on cigs from a mere couple of pennies per pack to 25 cents. Mississippi where tobacco isn't grown couldn't even raise its tax from 18 to 27 cents a pack to open 16 juvenile mental health centers.

According to University of Virginia's Larry Sabato, the widelyknown Southern political authority, the state's busicommunity was a major factor in getting the fifths vote necessary to pass tax package through the General Assembly.

Can you imagine the Mississippi Manufacturers Association or BIPEC, the business-industry political education committee, supporting a 1 percent hike in the top bracket of the state income tax, restoring it to 6 percent where it was over 30 years ago?

It doesn't seem to bother the e powerful corporate lobby at the State Capitol that income taxes on corporations pay only 30 percent of state income taxes while individual Mississippians -whose salaries are the lowest in the nation -- pay the rest.

State Rep. John Mayo, (D) Clarksdale, had proposed a 6 percent top income tax bracket in an across-the-board $200 million tax hike package at the session of the Legislature, but it failed to get out of the House Ways and Means committee.

Mayo said his research indicates that while most corporations would fall in the 6 percent bracket, their proportionate share of the income tax burden would remain the same.

States The United Academy Achievement recently announced that Heather L. Ladner from Bay St. Louis has been named a State National United Award Winner Leadership and Service.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes fewer than 10 percent of all American high school students.

Heather, who attends Bay High School, was nominated for this national award by Ms. Walters, a teacher at the school.

Heather, will appear in United the Academy Achievement Official Yearbook, which is published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly, United States Achievement Academy winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United Achievement States

Academy. The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, coun-

State selors, and other qualified sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

Heather is the daughter of Jimmie and Cheryl Ladner from Bay St. Louis. The grandparents are James and Mary Calhouhn of Waveland and Jimmie Ladner Sr. of Bay St. Louis.

But thanks to a special MBA program initiated in the fall of 2001 through The University of Southern Mississippi, Johnson, an electrical engineer by day; was able to complete her degree requirements after

Now, almost three years after joining the first class of MBA students taking classes entirely at Stennis Space Center, Johnson and seven other working professionals earned their diplomas Friday.

"I took classes two nights a week during the spring, summer and fall. What a relief it was to be able to take every course at Stennis," said Johnson, 34, of Diamondhead, Johnson, received the Outstanding Graduate Student Award from CBED, is employed by SAIC.

Initiated by the College of Business and Economic Development, the MBA program recruits from companies at Stennis, where approximately 30-35 private businesses, state and federal agencies are located.

Other members of the 2004 graduating class include the following: Hawkins Picayune (Southern Miss); Missy Ferguson of Bay St. Louis (NASA); Monica Moore of Carriere (NASA); Thomas Rich of Slidell, La. (Miss. Space Services); Daniel Romines of Sumrall (Lockheed business degree.

One of the big reasons for this program's attractiveness is the ability to have classes on-site," said Bill Smith, director of graduate programs for CBED. "Courses are offered after work, so it's convenient for students. Most are pursuing an MBA to further their careers, and this program meets a strong need as they consider their options."

Smith said many students enter the program because of the viability and flexibility of an advanced while remaining gainfully employed. Classes were not only on-site, but the class times were from 4:45 to 7:30 p.m., which was very convenient," Hawkins said.

She said she feels the program at Stennis has been and will continue to be a great opportunity for students and employees for years to come. "The professors of the university, the faculty of the Center for Higher Learning and the students are to be commended for the hard work and dedication put forth to make the MBA program a reality."

The program consists of Center location gave me an two sets of courses, those for option to receive a master's students with a business background, and those for ing students for another students without. The firstyear core curriculum for students with nonbusiness undergraduate degrees introduces students to marketing, accounting, business economics and other business fundamentals.Advanced curriculum develops skills in ethics, information technology, global business strategies and communication skills, as well as other courses. Additionally, students may take three elective courses to plan their programs according to their own unique interests and needs. Courses start in the fall and go straight through sequential order in the spring and summer.

Interim CHL director Keith Long said the program is growing in popularity and is currently acceptMBA class at Stennis this fall. "The last time they put together a survey for all employees (at Stennis), the MBA degree program was the number one requested degree program," Long said.

The Broken Chain

We little knew that morning that God was going to call your name. In life we loved you dearly, in death we do the same. It broke our hearts to lose you, you did not go alone; for part of us went with you, the day God called you home. You left us peaceful memories, your love is still our guide; and though we cannot see you, you are always a our side. Gourmet buffets give Gulf Coast casinos the competitive advantage

BY LYNDA EDWARDS Associated Press Writer

The maiden wore a crown of white orchids and tinsel stars and a white gown threaded in silver, a scene somewhat out of place in the cavernous Mississippi Coast Coliseum hall.

She stood in a forest of potted elms bathed in purple light. A waterfall next to her burbled into a pool containing a gray plastic foam rock pierced by a sword. She gazed across the sea of people swirling around tables loaded with lobster, caviar tarts, scallops sauteed with truffles, and endless desserts including a Belgian chocolate sculpture of Saint

George battling a dragon.
`Are you the buffet queen?" asked a man piling his plate with foie gras and barbecued ribs at the recent Southern Gaming Summit.

'I'm the Lady of the Lake! The casino chefs were given a Middle Ages theme," she replied, laughing.

The Lady in the Lake was the focal point for Casino Magic's entry in a buffet contest held recently for the Gulf Coast's twelve casinos. The coliseum teemed with cardboard castles, knights in armor, purple velvet tents, fake forests and a huge replica of medieval market.

The iron chef combat was a fun cap to the annual gathering of casino executives and gaming industry a new fixation for casinos seeking an edge in a competitive market.

When the gourmet buffet concept is launched in Vegas in May, the casino world will be turned upside down," said Las Vegas food and beverage consultant George Burkhardt, who also teaches casino management at Tulane University.

When he says "gourmet buffet", he means the same delights that would fetch $100 per meal in chic restaurants. The MGM Mirage will Cravings, a $20.50 per person gourmet buffet featuring five star restaurant dishes. The Bellagio has a $32.95 gourmet buffet on select days each week. But Cravings is the first attempt to offer a bargain haute cuisine buffet. Gourmet buffets cost casinos more than steam tables of boiled shrimp and prime rib. Burkhardt insists the payoff is colossal.

Gamblers love buffets; 60 percent of buffet eaters gamble," Burkhardt said. There is no similar crossover between people who eat at casino coffee shops and restaurants."

Burkhardt recently completed a case study of eight casinos and their eateries. He found that about onefifth of gamblers choose a casino for its buffet.

One casino was losing approximately $1 million rofessionals, annually, he said, `Then it The contest also reflected re-themed the buffet pizza twirlers and Asian who want to feel crass cash barbecue and decorating the food stations."

The casino's revenues soared to a $1 million profit in the first year after the revamped buffet debut, Burkhardt said.

Remodeling restaurants and coffee shops had no such measurable impact on revenues.

Re-theming was the solution several Southern alabaster fused to glass. Gaming Summit experts offered for struggling casinos. The term means giving the casino a fresh look and an ambiance that sets it apart from its competitors.

Southern casinos often look like long rectangular boxes, a look that dates back to when slot joints and bingo halls were built along highway," said Reno-based casino design consultant David Kranes. "Visitors hate them. The shape and lighting depress gamblers. It skews depth perception and makes people feel trapped."

The last thing a casino wants a gambler to feel is hopeless and desperate to Casinos should take their inspiration from baroque cathedrals where visitors move from one sacred space that makes them feel special to the next," said Las Vegas design consultant Lee Cagley.

Cagley, who graduated with an architectural degree from Rice University, adding exhibitions like knows how to please visitors more than a holy glow.

As vice president of Marnell Carrao, one of the world's biggest casino developers, Cagley's projects have included Lady Luck, the Golden Nugget and the Mohegan Sun.

Mohegan Sun casino in Connecticut contains a three-story tall crystal mountain made of onyx and

The Mohegan has a nature theme. The glass mountain is part of the Sky promenade. The ceiling there features a digital blue sky that deepens into starry heavens each night. The casino's Rain restaurant contains a waterfall. Ceramic puddles adorn the

That kind of re-theming may be too pricey for Mississippi casinos. Even Biloxi's Beau Rivage, owned by the MGM Mirage, sticks to a simple decorative flourishes like a fountain and flowers. And the remedy for an ugly shoebox can be cheap and easy, Cagley said.

"Light can do more than marble and steel to change how a space looks," Cagley

Huge halls can be carved up by different colors and types of lighting, he said, and visitors can walk from slot machines in a soothing pool of blue light to golden spotlights that can give gaming tables an optimistic halo! Francisco

Hancock Bank enhances its merchant services

THE SEA COAST ECHO An alliance between 105year-old Hancock Bank and Denver-based First Data Corp., a global leader in electronic commerce and payments services, will strengthen the competitive advantages available to merchants using Hancock's credit card transaction serv-

The agreement establish-Hancock Merchant Services under which First Data will provide all merchant payment processing services on behalf of Hancock Bank.

The arrangement further advances the technology offered to Hancock merchant customers through an expanded portfolio of electronic products and services and augments a merchant support network with additional relationship managers throughout Hancock's Gulf South markets.

Having processed more than 12.2 billion merchant transactions last year, First Data's core systems and services include authorization, settlement, chargeback, reconciliation, credit, debit, gift card, check verification and guarantee, pointof-sale solutions, and equipmanagement. Hancock Merchant Services will combine Hancock Bank's strong brand recognition and branch distribution with First Data's

economies of scale and expertise in growing a merchant business. "Many of today's successful businesses depend on efficient, cost-effective card processing to give customers convenient electronic payment options and secure timely payment for goods or services. assuming responsibility for Hancock Bank's merchant services transactions, First Data will help Hancock deliver enhanced comprehensive service to business in customers Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, and Florida communities Hancock serves," Hancock President and Chief Executive Officer George A. Schloegel.

"Every second of every day, millions of people and businesses around the world rely on First Data to handle transactions safely, reliably, and securely," said John Shlonsky, president, First Data Merchant Services. "This new alliance with Hancock Bank enables us to provide a greater choice of superior payment options to merchants who need them. We at First Data pride ourselves on our ability to represent our bank partners with the same customer care and level of service that they provide their customers today."

Housing -- HUD steps in

etly check into what she said were numerous complaints from residents, gathering her own evidence of violations from interviews with residents and from the authority's own records. Martin turned over the evidence to officials at HUD, and to the Hancock County NAACP.

Also contained in HUD's report were a long list of complaints of "disrespectful and discriminatory treatment" by authority employees of residents of the authority's three housing units. Executive Director of the Gulf Coast Fair Housing Center in Gulfport James Perry said that though commissioners said they were unaware of the numerous complaints, his office had received 50-plus such complaints since January.

The Authority's Board of Commissioners said it would not look into the complaints that did not fall under the HUD recommendations, but both Perry and Hancock County NAACP hope they change their minds, they said.

investigator NAACP Lonnie Bradley said that the organization not only expects the authority to corrective implement actions to fix cited findings and observations, but that the NAACP also expects the authority to end their apparent policy of disregarding and ignoring resident's complaints.

"We feel these problems: are significant violations of fair housing and anti-discrimination policies and we are calling for the person or persons responsible to resign or be terminated." said Bradley. "If the Authority chooses to disregard this report and do nothing to substantially correct the problems, we will go back to HUD. If the residents do not get any respect from HUD, then our next step will be to take the problem to Washington D.C."

Perry said his organization cannot overlook the numerous complaints from residents, though he hopes that the board members will change their minds about overlooking those complaints. If they do not, then the Center is prepared to enlist the help of its team of expert attorneys to help correct the situation, Perry said. Both Perry and Bradley said they would prefer an amicable settlement of the problems.

Martin said that at this point she is mainly concerned for the safety and welfare of the residents, who, she said, live with leaking gas stoves and heaters and are fearful to complain or speak up for themselves.

The eight findings or violations of federal regulations are:

• 1. BSLHA's application for admission contains language that is prohibited by the Fair Housing Act that could give the appearance of discrimination.

guage resulting in the resident not being given the own policies leads to confu-

• 3. BSLHA's admission and continued occupancypolicy does not contain the information required and could result in the residents not being treated equitably.

• 4. BSLHA's lease does not contain the required information, leaving the residents unaware of the obligations required of

• 5. BSLHA has not fully implemented the community service requirement and is not completing required forms regarding this requirement. Residents must fulfill the requirement to be tenants in good stand-

6. BSLHA is not reviewing utility allowances, which could cause the resident to have to pay more rent then required.

• 7. have been housed first. The ten observations or recommendations are:

• 1. The BSLHA advisory board of residents is not meeting quarterly. If the board had been meeting as required, some of the issues raised recently could have been avoided.

• 2. Residents were unaware that they could and have a right to form a Resident Council to represent their needs. HUD encourages such a council.

• 3. The authority is not currently completing an application for continued occupancy at each re-examination. HUD encourages such a report to be in the tenants own handwriting.

• 4. BSLHA was not using the tenant assessment subsystem at the time of the interview for verification purposes.

• 5. BSLHA should develop a form to place in resident file regarding earned income disallowance.

• 6. In March the BSLHA met required percentages for extremely low-income residents, however the authority does not have a system in place to track the income targeting requirements to ensure that the required 40 percent is met.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

Presenting some of the Finest Restaurants on the Mississippi Gulf Coast

Welcome to the Sycamore House

In Fall of 2002, Stella LeGardeur and Michael Eastham came to the Gulf Coast in search of a home and a restaurant. They found both in the former Mauffray boarding house, a charming pair of Acadian cottages that were combined into a single dwelling in the 1850s. Now on the National Register of Historical Places, the property has served on and off as a restaurant since the 1970's. Although oak trees older than the house shade the screened porch and the patio, the couple chose the name The Sycamore House in honor of Michael's grandmother, whose British home of that name was a source of joy to him when he was a child.

Stella and Michael both completed the rigorous training at the Culinary Institute of America in Hyde Park, N.Y., but their backgrounds couldn't be more different. A native of New Orleans, Stella grew up steeped in the local passion for seafood and Creole cuisine. Michael was raised in the mid-Hudson Valley near Kingston, N.Y., a not-quite melted melting pot where Eastern Europeans, Italians and Brits shared their traditions and foodways. He became entranced with cooking when his step-Grandmother, a Czech native, let him watch while she made phyllo, pasta and polenta from scratch. Years later, he drew on that fascination when he turned from a career in the visual arts to pursue cuisine.

Both chefs apprenticed with people whose names carry weight in the world of fine food - she with pastry master Deiter Schorner, both of them with Ric Orlando at New World Home Cooking - and both have won recognition for their culinary achievements. The pleasure of welcoming guests to the home they've created at The Sycamore House, though eclipses any other achievement. They, delight in the sharing their love of food and their welcome with you, their guest. And they hope that you will leave filled with the same sort of delight that prompted them to name their place after a home where wit, embracing hospitality and beauty and great meals were the norm.

Thank You for joining us, Stella LaGardeur Eastham and Michael J. Eastham

etly check into what she said were numerous complaints from residents, gathering her own evidence of violations from interviews with residents and from the authority's own records. Martin turned over the evidence to officials at HUD, and to the Hancock County NAACP.

Also contained in HUD's report were a long list of complaints of "disrespectful and discriminatory treatment" by authority employees of residents of the authority's three housing units. Executive Director of the Gulf Coast Fair Housing Center in Gulfport James Perry said that though commissioners said they were unaware of the numerous complaints, his office had received 50-plus such complaints since January.

The Authority's Board of Commissioners said it would not look into the complaints that did not fall under the HUD recommendations, but both Perry and the Hancock County NAACP hope they change their minds, they said.

investigator NAACP Lonnie Bradley said that the organization not only expects the authority to implement corrective actions to fix cited findings and observations, but that the NAACP also expects the authority to end their apparent policy of disregarding and ignoring resident's complaints.

We feel these problems are significant violations of fair housing and anti-discrimination policies and we are calling for the person or persons responsible to resign or be terminated," said Bradley. "If the Authority chooses to disregard this report and do nothing to substantially correct the problems, we will go back to HUD. If the residents do not get any respect from HUD, then our next step will be to take the problem to Washington D.C."

Perry said his organization cannot overlook the numerous complaints from residents, though he hopes that the board members will change their minds about overlooking those complaints. If they do not, then the Center is prepared to enlist the help of its team of expert attorneys to help correct the situation, Perry said. Both Perry and Bradley said they would prefer an amicable settlement of the problems.

Martin said that at this point she is mainly concerned for the safety and welfare of the residents, who, she said, live with leaking gas stoves and heaters and are fearful to complain or speak up for themselves.

The eight findings or violations of federal regulations are:

• 1. BSLHA's application for admission contains language that is prohibited by the Fair Housing Act that could give the appearance of discrimination.

• 2. BSLHA's Notice of rent adjustment does not contain the required language resulting in the resident not being given the own policies leads to confu-opportunity to examine how their rent is calculated to see if all income/deductions are used.

• 3. BSLHA's admission and continued occupancy policy does not contain the. information required and could result in the residents not being treated equitably.

• 4. BSLHA's lease does not contain the required information, leaving the residents unaware of the obligations required of them.

• 5. BSLHA has not fully implemented the community service requirement and is not completing required forms regarding this requirement. Residents must fulfill the requirement to be tenants in good stand-

• 6. BSLHA is not reviewing its utility allowances, which could cause the resident to have to pay more rent then required.

• 7. BSLHA is not in compliance with regulations regarding resident participation funding, The fund received by the authority is not being administered in accordance with regulations and the residents are not receiving the benefit of this special funding. Federal funds are not being managed effectively. • 8. BSLHA is not following its own policies in admitting applicants and the tenant selection and assignment plan in the ACOP differs from what is posted on the bulletin board. Not following their have been housed first. The ten observations or recommendations are: • 1. The BSLHA advisory board of residents is not meeting quarterly. If the board had been meeting as required, some of the issues raised recently could have been avoided.

• 2. Residents were unaware that they could and have a right to form a Resident Council to represent their needs. HUD encourages such a council.

• 3. The authority is not currently completing an application for continued occupancy at each re-examination. HUD encourages such a report to be in the tenants own handwriting.

• 4. BSLHA was not using the tenant assessment subsystem at the time of the interview for verification purposes.

• 5, BSLHA should develop a form to place in resident file regarding earned income disallowance.

• 6. In March the BSLHA met required percentages for extremely low-income residents, however the authority does not have a system in place to track the income targeting requirements to ensure that the required 40 percent is met.

• 7. BSLHA is using ten income ranges by bedroom size leading to a confusing and time consuming process correctly. done

Recommendation is revised policy. • 8. When a resident moves in or leaves a unit, no work order for repairs or other needed maintenance completed. is Recommendation is that maintenance men must complete these orders.

• 9. Reviewers did not see a system in place to advise residents of the hardship exemption if unable to pay the minimum rent. Residents have a right to request a hardship exemption if unable to pay rent. The authority is reminded that they cannot evict a family for nonpayment of minimum rent during a 90 day period beginning the month following the family's request.

• 10 The reviewers did not have time to ensure that all the required postings were posted on the bulletin board. HUD supplied the authority with a list of required postings including an after hours number for emergencies.

TEN YEARS AGO

May 19, 1994 - Ten Cuban and five Americans earned certificates of competition last week after they graduates from classes in drug and alcohol rehabilitation at the Hancock County Justice Facility. Lt. Larry Willis, training officer and INS liaison for the Hancock County Sheriff's office, said the course was a county initiative for the men, ages 20. to 40 years of age who has been arrested for drug and alcohol violations. The course was taught by certified instructor Nicky Kingston, was the first of what will be an ongoing program of help for those with drug problems.

-Lindy Heitzmann and Caroline Weems, 10th grade students at Our Lady Academy won the State 2A. Tennis Girls Doubles Tournament in Jackson on May 4.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

May 20, 1984 - The Louisiana World Expedition is expected to bring thousands of visitors to the South who will take home with them, fair planners hope, memories that will last a long time. For Peter Faucetta of Ulman Avenue, Bay St. Louis, memories of past experiences are being refreshed with one of the exhibition's exhibits.

The U.S. Coast Guard Cutter Eagle is currently on display at the exposition. Faucetta went aboard the Eagle in 1955 when she was berthed at the U.S. Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn.

He served on the vessel until 1958, during which time he traveled around the world with her, including stops in Portugal, England, Spain, France, Cuba, and the Caribbean. Faucetta was engineerman chief on the Eagle, and instructed cadets in machinery.

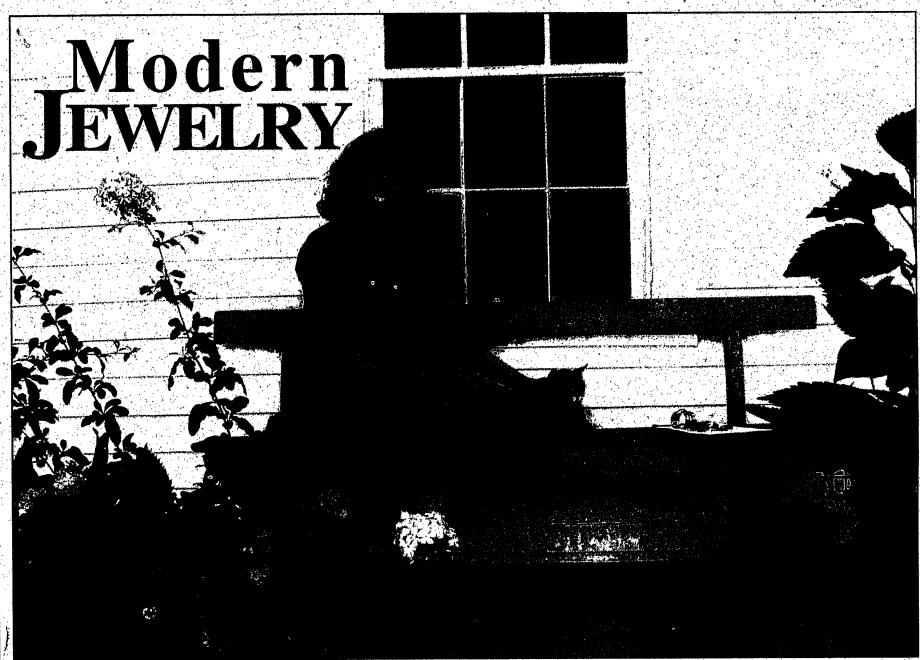

—New homes in Waveland will have to comply with a city ordinance adopted in April of 1974 but until now was not generally enforced, Waveland Aldermen agreed Wednesday evening.

Ordinance No. 92 requires that all homes elevated to a height in excess of six feet from the bottom shell to the surface of the bottom portion thereof enclosed with wooden, wire, aluminum or metal latticework or screen.

Mayor John Longo said the ordinance would affect homes under construction, but no effort will be made to enforce the ordinance for home already in place.

Stanislaus sailing team places 12th nationally; Lewis chosen All-State

BY JOSEPH W. GEX II Staff Writer

The St. Stanislaus Rocka-chaw sailing team placed 12th at the Baker National Racing Team Championships over the weekend at Annapolis, Maryland.

The Rocks competed against high school teams from across the nation. Point Loma of San Diego won the event followed by the Hotchkiss School of Lakeville, Connecticut, and St. George's School from Newport, RI. In the race, the team sailed Club 420 and Flying Junior crafts.

Zwerg stated, "This was a terrific experience for these young men.

"It humbled them in some ways because it showed them what they need to work on. The entire team will return next season and this experience gives them an advantage over some other schools who will be losing the majority of their squad.

"As a coach, I also learned a tremendous amount. I now know what it will takemfor us to get back to this level of competition next season. However, next year is shaping up to be a solid year for SSC sailing."

The members of the SSC sailing team are Chris Rogers, Alex Boudreaux. Gary Taylor, Wynne Taylor, Christian Walter, and Micah

In other track and field news, senior distance runner Kyle Lewis was recently selected first team All-State by the Associated Press. Lewis, an Ole Miss signee, won both the 1600m and 3200m races earlier this month at the Class 4A state track and field meet in Pearl. His times in the events were 4:28.74 and 9:51.26, respectively. He also placed second in the 800m run to narrowly miss a rare triple-gold medal performance.

The United States Achievement Academy announced last week that LeAnn Elizabeth Williams from Bay St. Louis. MS has been named a united State National Award Winner in Honor Roll and Algebra.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes fewer than 10% of all American high school students. LeAnn Elizabeth Williams, who attends Bay-Waveland Middle School, was nominated for this national award by Mrs. Joan Osco, a algebra teacher at the school.

Elizabeth LeAnn Williams will appear in the United State Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, which is published national-Schon has traveled through much of the world, New Zealand, Europe, Scandinavia and the cities of America in search of interesting pieces.

Marbeth

For the past 10 years she has concentrated her efforts on the modernist jewelry movement, whose pieces were created from the 1930s to the 1960s. She collects one piece at a time, each selected with great care.

Schon houses her collection at the gallery she and husband Andrew Tilban own on Second Street. Tilban ran a contemporary art gallery in New Orleans for years.

The two met in Virginia when Tilban bought a painting from Schon at a gallery there. When the couple arrived in Bay St. Louis 12 years ago, they sold oriental rugs and imports. online publication concentrating on mod-and designers.

She found her first piece of the modernist collection in New Orleans and it appealed to her as a small sculpture rather than purely jewelry, Schon said. "I'm not really a jewelry person," said Schon. "But an art person, and the idea of wearing of sculpture a piece appealed to me.

She also enjoys the search. "Modernists pieces are becoming rare and finding each piece is like looking for a needle in a haystack, she said.

Schon is also owner Schon in the 1970's in Los Angeles. Marby (Marbeth) dreamed of becommunity in the area, and editor of Modern ing famous for her music, but instead pursued a career in art education and especially not have and art valuation.

Many of the designers ern jewelry and it's creators from the modernists period were actually artists of other mediums, who also created jewelry. Some, such as Harry Bertoia and Alexander Calder were innovative new sculptors who defied the traditions of their time. Most were artists who chose metal as their medium.

The modernist movement in art began primarily in Europe in the 1920s. Soon the political climate in this part of the world forced many artist to flee to the United States, bringing the movement with them. After the war the movement was in part spurred on by the fact that returning GI's were offered free training in metalsmithing through the GI bill. Many well known modernist jewelers began their careers in this way. Creole Locally.

sculptor/jeweler Jose De Rivera, who grew up on a plantation outside of Baton Rouge, became internationally renowned for his sculpture. He used his jewelry designs primarily as studies for larger pieces. Many of the remaining modernist pieces can be found in New York or San Francisco, cen-ers for the movement. Schon spent about a year putting together the material book. Three quarters of the photographs were taken by her, in her own style. The rest were sent from museums or families of some of the artists. The interviews reflect many more years of work.

Though collecting modernist jewelry is her passion, Schon loves all forms of art. She describes herself as an artist, musician and a writer. She is also a teacher and a photographer and a talented page designer for her magazine.

She taught the children's choir at her United church Methodist on Main Street and still sings in the choir. She says one of the things she likes best about the laid back lifestyle of the Bay is living across the street from her church. She also enjoys walking many places each day, the growth of the art ing to commute to work.

"It's nice to know people everywhere you go and your neighbors," said Schon. "And the great feeling of community in the area ... you can be involved or have your privacy, its just a great place to be.

in every other part of the country, and it's about time we employed their use in the South.

By "designer," I am referring to anything from a single blooming species covering the basket to the use of three to five species, artistically placed with color and texture in mind. Another very important matter to keep in mind is the period of bloom, whether it is spring, summer or fall.

There may be a little difference in how the basket is made from the standpoint of wire and liner, but once it is full of blooming plants, that's all people will notice. You can buy them already blooming or make your own.

To make your own, choose a large wire basket. Next, get sphagnum moss and place it in a bucket of water. Remove the moss, and squeeze out the water.

are the hottest thing going Line the basket by pressing your chain. the moss down and around the wires.

You will be surprised that you actually will create a bowl that will hold potting mix and yet drain.

Once the basket has been lined, fill the bottom 2 inches with a very good, light and airy potting mix that contains a controlledrelease fertilizer.

Use your fingers to poke holes through the wires at the soil level. Insert your first plants through the holes with the rootball lying on the soil surface. Add more soil and work your way to the top. Place the plants about 4 to 6 inches

The soil level should be about three-fourths of an inch below the top of the moss. By all means, place a plant in the center of the basket. You may wish to select one that will climb

Many gardeners and growers alike prefer the new baskets lined with coconut coir.

These are less messy, but usually a little more expensive. With these liners, you simply cut a slit or hole in the liner to allow the plant to be placed through to the potting mix. Some of the most beautiful baskets I've seen actually used a product similar to the old fiber pot, which resembles gray cardboard.

Don't let this fool you because as the plants grow and cascade over the rim you'll never know the container is a cheapie that will last only a year.

You may be concerned about summer when it's hotter than you-knowwhere. The Summit Lifestyle Center in Birmingham annually demonstrates that baskets can look good all summer with an adequate water supply and a diluted, watersoluble fertilizer with every other watering.

Plant selection is also critical. The plants were some of my favorites. In the middle of the baskets were mandevillas climbing the chain.

Around the perimeter was New Gold lantana, asparagus fern Marguerite sweet potato. Other choice summer basket plants are New Wonder scaevola, Purple Heart (Tradescantia pallida), Dragon Wing red begonia, Mississippi Summer sun coleus, Madagascar periwinkles, Mexican heather, Mexican mint and Escapade blue plumbago.

Fern baskets are great, but those packed with color will give the porch, patio or deck the look of a hanging garden instead.
